Rocky turns RFK's seat over to GOP

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller reached into the Republican ranks Tuesday and appointed 42-year-old Charles E. Goodell, Western New York congressman, to the Senate seat vacated by the death of Robert F. Kennedy, a Democrat.

Rockefeller ended weeks of speculation on his choice when he went before a news conference at the State Capitol and said: "I have today appointed Rep. Charles E. Goodell of Jamestown as United States Senator from New York, succeeding the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. The senator-designate expects to be sworn in Thursday in Washington.

Goodell, a nine-year member of the House, has played a key role in developing legislation aimed at improving conditions in the cities. He has taken positions on issues in the House that have earned him the labels of both conservative and liberal. At the GOP national convention last month, he pressed unsuccessfully for the nomination of New York Mayor John V. Lindsay as a vice presidential candidate. Goodell also is largely responsible for inserting many of Rockefeller's ideas on urban problems and their solutions into the party platform. Appearing with Rockefeller, and Republican Jacob K. Javits,

Charles Goodell
New York's senior senator, Goodell described Kennedy as "a man of unique talents who can never be replaced."

Goodell promised to strive to solve the problems of urban blight, mass transportation, housing, special education for the poor, air pollution and water contamination.

Under questioning by newsmen, he expressed support for U.S. Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas, whose appointment by President Johnson to the office of U.S. Chief Justice has met with strong Senate opposition.

On the Vietnam war, Goodell, renewed his contention that the U.S. should not be engaged in a land war "10,000 miles away."

He said in reply to a question that he thought any suspension of American bombing of North Vietnam should be qualified. He suggested the possibility of a 30-day period of suspension evaluated on a daily basis.

Humphrey seeks Mac support

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey made his sharpest assault on Richard M. Nixon, the man, Tuesday and his strongest appeal for the support of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy.

The vice president acknowledged that McCarthy "has serious problems about the support of my candidacy."

But Humphrey insisted that McCarthy as well as other dissident Democrats have to choose among Nixon, Gov. George Wallace and himself.

And Humphrey said he couldn't believe "my friend" McCarthy would want Wallace to decide the election or to have Nixon as president.

Humphrey told a breakfast meeting of Businessmen for Humphrey that a central issue of the campaign was which of the two major party candidates "can you trust?"

Humphrey said that the decisions of the next president would affect "the lives of children yet unborn."

Thus, he said, the voters should carefully study the record of both men — himself and Nixon — as an indication "of what you can expect, particularly under times of stress... and whoever is president will live under continuous stress."

Humphrey, obviously referring to Nixon but without naming him, asked, "How will he react under strain?"

"Will the new coating wear off and the old substance come through? or will that thin veneer of the most recent political cosmetic treatment remain?"

Humphrey told the businessmen they would have to ask themselves that question, but he added: "I don't come to you as the new Humphrey. I am just Hubert Humphrey, the one you have known for a long time."

Humphrey, in an interview on television station KNBC, again proposed that the candidates make a joint statement to make clear to Hanoi that it would gain no more with a new president than it had with Humphrey.

Humphrey also expressed belief that if it can be shown that a bombing halt produce more substantive talks in the Paris negotiations, the U.S. bombing would be stopped.

Humphrey also acknowledged some risks in what he called "the politics of confrontation" — question and answer sessions with audiences.

It was during such a session in Denver on Monday that Humphrey said he would have been able to run on a Vietnam plank proposed by doves at the Democratic National Convention, but which was voted down after one of the convention's key battles.

Humphrey explained that he had announced earlier that he would support whomever the Democratic party nominated — including war critic McCarthy.

He noted that the minority plank called for an unconditional cessation of the bombing, but at the same time spoke of protecting the American troops.

Thus, Humphrey went on, "it sort of painted over some of the real problems we have."

"I thought the majority plank... was the better of the two."

And, he added, it would have been more difficult for him to run on the minority plank and had been forced to be would have had to make elaborations of his own.

As for McCarthy's support, Humphrey said, "I will just rely on what I consider his basic decency and good will."

Czechs receive Russian aid; big economic help withheld

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Premier Oldrich Cernik flew to Moscow Tuesday, got a promise of Soviet gas deliveries and signed an economic protocol. But there was no sign he got the big loan his nation needs.

Cernik returned to Prague with his deputy premier, Frantisek Wianoz and his foreign trade minister, Vlastislav Vales. CTF news agency announced the agreements were signed with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin but gave no details.

Communist sources in Moscow said the two documents were the main subject of the economic talks in the Kremlin. Thus it was not clear whether Cernik discussed with Kosygin the request for a large loan to revitalize the economy.

Before the invasion of 600,000 Soviet, Polish, East German, Hungarian and Bulgarian troops Aug. 20-21 curbed their growing independence, Prague leaders had looked to the West for a $400-million loan after failing to get one from Moscow.

A communiqué released by Tass news agency in Moscow said Cernik and Kosygin discussed delivery of Soviet gas, oil, iron and other goods and Czechoslovak delivery of steel pipe for gas pipe lines, large trucks, knit goods, shoes and other goods.

Later Cernik met with Leonid I. Brezhnev, Soviet Communist party chief, President Nikolai V. Podgorny and Kosygin for talks "in a friendly, comradely atmosphere."

Tass said the two sides "again confirmed readiness for the widest cooperation on the basis of Socialist solidarity, mutual respect and equality... in the interests of further strengthening of the Socialist community and enhancing the effectiveness of the Warsaw treaty."

The communiqué said both sides also agreed that the main thing now is to "bring consistency into life the practical steps" outlined at the Soviet-Czechoslovak leaders meeting in Moscow Aug. 23-26. This agreement said the Soviet bloc troops would withdraw when the situation "normalizes."

Before leaving for Moscow, Vales told the Communist party newspaper Rude Pravo that economic cooperation with the Soviet Union is vital to Czechoslovakia. He added that this was "not dictated by sentiment only but by reason."

Vales said disrupted transport and production delays during the first phase of the occupation caused losses in Czechoslovak exports to the West that "can no longer be recovered."

Losses in Czechoslovak-Soviet trade could be offset during the next few months, he added, explaining that goods exchanged between the two countries flowed normally except for a few days.

State Department officials related his remarks to North Korea's repeated and insistent demands for three actions by the United States: they are: an admission that the Pueblo was guilty of violating North Korea's territorial waters; an apology; and a promise that there would be no violations in the future.

Rusk spoke to newsmen on emerging from a three-hour briefing of the House Foreign Affairs Committee on world problems.

He told them there is no independent evidence whatsoever that the Pueblo violated its sailing orders on Jan. 23. Those orders were to remain outside of the 12-mile limit.

North Korea has claimed the Pueblo moved within seven miles of the nearest land, the port of Wonsan, where it was seized by armed North Korean patrol craft.

Widely scattered reports and broadcasts from North Korea itself had built up expectations over the weekend that the Pueblo might be released in connection with the 20th anniversary of North Korea's existence as a Communist state.

Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford, who also testified on Capitol Hill behind closed doors, told newsmen he had nothing to indicate that the Pueblo release is imminent.

However, Rusk shed a little more information on the negotiations, which have been stalled since last January.

Washington (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk indicated Tuesday that North Korea is demanding not only an apology but a promise that U.S. ships will stay out of the Sea of Japan as the price for release of the USS Pueblo and its crew.

"It is not just a question of an apology," Rusk told newsmen. "It is my understanding they have asked for a good many things including commitments about further action that would involve the high seas in the Sea of Japan."

Rusk made the disclosure at about the same time the State Department, in a carefully considered statement, declared the seizure of the Navy intelligence ship seven months ago was an illegal act which does not call for an apology.

There have been repeated reports that the United States planned to apologize and the statement was in response to these.

The State Department spokesman, press officer Robert J. McCloskey, said that if negotiations to obtain the release of the crew of 82 and the ship are to prove successful "we have an obligation to keep the negotiations private."

However, Rusk shed a little more information on the negotiations, which have been stalled since last January.

Washington (AP) — Up to five inches of rain fell throughout central Pennsylvania Tuesday, causing at least one death and flooding of some streams and roads.

An official five inches fell at Elizabethtown, southeast of Harrisburg. One unofficial report said six inches had fallen at Elizabethtown at 10 p.m. after a day-long rain.

Cloudbursts arrived in Monroe County and rain water gushed down streets shortly after 11 p.m.

The U.S. Weather Bureau at Harrisburg-York Airport said all parts of the state had some rain Tuesday, ranging from a little more than one inch in the west to less than one-half inch in the Philadelphia area.

Mrs. Elizabeth Citaro, 42, Kulpmont, a registered nurse, suffered fatal injuries when her car skidded on rain-slicked pavement in Elysburg village of Northumberland County. The area, just north of Shamokin, had at least two inches of rain by 6 p.m.

Child's view to begin in Record

Everyone knows that the main difference between grownups and children is that grownups are smarter.

Grownups know much more—information, facts, reasons, methods, rules.

Children are not so smart because they haven't learned the right things yet—especially the rules. They don't know how they are supposed to react to everything. So everything comes to them new and full of wonder. They haven't learned yet to prejudge or label or pigeonhole each new piece of information or observation.

This is a terribly inconvenient attitude in that it allows them a fresh look at what most adults take for granted or have stopped thinking about altogether.

"Children's Letters to God" is a feature to celebrate the special quality of childhood—of children's thought and understanding the concept of their world as they see it. This special quality will appear daily in The Pocono Record, beginning on Thursday.

Nixon remembers 'forgotten'

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon promised Tuesday more home rule for suburbanites—a large part of what I call the forgotten American.

Nixon, the Republican presidential candidate, again talked about the Americans he says don't attract attention because they don't demonstrate.

Before his speech in a suburban area of New York State, the former vice president planned dinner with Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York at the governor's Tarrytown estate. On Wednesday, Nixon, Rockefeller, Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York, and New York Mayor John V. Lindsay will appear together to announce their plan for carrying the state for the GOP.

Javits and Lindsay both backed Rockefeller for the Republican presidential nomination, but all three now support Nixon.

In the speech prepared for delivery in White Plains, Nixon said suburbanites "demonstrate by setting an example of citizenship."

"There is a quiet demonstration and it doesn't make the headlines," Nixon said. "But it is this quiet demonstration of faith in the American system that moves America forward."

Nixon said suburbanites "don't need federal projects suddenly imposed upon them."

"For the past four years we've seen a strong push for federal rule," he said, "but in the next four years we're going to see a stronger push for more home rule."

NYC teachers in agreement; classes may begin today

NEW YORK (AP) — A tentative settlement was announced Tuesday in a teachers' strike that delayed the opening of New York City public schools for two days for nearly 1.1 million pupils.

Officials were hopeful the fall term could get under way today.

Mrs. Rose Shapiro, president of the Board of Education, announced: "The Board of Education is pleased to announce an agreement has been reached with the United Federation of Teachers."

Key issue in the school tieup was the job security demand of Teachers' Union.

Terms of the settlement of the racial-tinged dispute were to be submitted to a rank and file union vote within hours.

During the day, only 228 of the city's 900 public schools were open, with about 11,500 pupils in attendance. Summer vacation for most of the students was prolonged for a second day.

Only 4,300 teachers reported to classrooms.

It was the second time in as many years that the UFT had paralyzed the public school system at the outset of the autumn term. Pupils missed 14 classroom days in 1967 during a wage strike by the union.

Shanker served 15 days in jail last year for violating the state's Taylor law, which prohibits strikes by public employees. The union was fined $150,000. Similar action under the law had been initiated in the courts Monday, but was expected to be dropped upon ratification of the back to work agreement.

Racial aspects of the current strike were evidenced in Negro Harlem and the Negro-Puerto Rican district of Ocean Hill-Brownsville in Brooklyn. Schools in both areas had remained open in defiance of the UFT strike, although attendance was light.

The firing of 10 white teachers in the locally controlled Ocean Hill-Brownsville school district led to the UFT strike which began Monday, the scheduled opening day of the new term.

The Ocean Hill-Brownsville district is a pilot project in an experiment aimed at eventual decentralization of New York's 900-school complex into 33 locally governed districts. Brownsville is one of the city's worst slum areas.

Last spring, the local board of Ocean Hill-Brownsville ousted 10 white teachers whom it accused of sabotaging decentralization. The Board of Education ordered the 10 returned to their schools, and the UFT struck with a demand that they be taken back without reprisals.

The union contended the Ocean Hill-Brownsville incident was an example of the job security erosion that could result from city-wide decentralization of schools. Expressing fear of mass firings, the teachers insisted on binding outside arbitration in such disputes.

Johnson declared, "I assure you we shall not do." And he added that there would be no surrender "on the installment plan, as some have suggested."

"Our casualties would skyrocket" if the bombing were stopped, the President said.

He brought the Legionnaires to their feet when he declared, "So, I appeal to you to support peace by maintaining strength—by refusing to sacrifice principle, by standing as firm as home as our men stand abroad."

The President pounded the podium for emphasis frequently, one time declaring the United States would not go along with those who suggest we could withdraw troops from below the Demilitarized Zone and turn that part of South Vietnam over to the North Vietnamese.

"This," Johnson declared, "I assure you we shall not do." And he added that there would be no surrender "on the installment plan, as some have suggested."

Two cops fired for shooting into Black Panther building

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Two white policemen were fired Tuesday after a dozen high caliber bullets were fired from a black-and-white police car into the Oakland headquarters of the Black Panthers.

Police Chief Charles Gans said the two discharged officers had been drinking and that they were on duty at the time of the shooting. He did not elaborate.

He identified them as Richard V. Williams, 28, and Robert W. Farrell, 26. Both joined the force in 1965.

Later, City Manager Jerome Keithley would say only that both policemen had been discharged "on the basis of the police report" of the shooting. No one was in the building when the shots were fired.

The Negro militants' bullet-riddled headquarters is in West Oakland—the same area where one white policeman was slain, a second wounded and Black Panther organizer Huey Newton was arrested Oct. 28 on a murder charge.

Sunday night, after a 35-day trial, a jury rejected the prosecution's murder charge and convicted the 26-year-old Newton of voluntary manslaughter.

At 1:30 a.m. Tuesday, a burst of shots awakened Margarita Ramos at her home near the Black Panther headquarters.

Then a second volley brought her leaping from bed. She said she got to the window in time to see two officers firing from their patrol car.

Her brother-in-law raced to the window and took down the patrol car's number. He notified police.

Troops stuck in mud

Typhoon Bess slows fighting

SAIGON (AP) — Typhoon Bess, which struck South Vietnam in the middle of last week, has converted the countryside into a sea of mud and drastically curtailed ground fighting. But the Viet Cong's "underground war" goes on unaffected.

An explosion rattled Saigon windows Tuesday when U.S. Army bomb disposal experts detonated a package of plastic explosives found planted in a downtown alley. The experts decided it would be safer to explode the charge than move it.

In Da Nang, police ordered the arrest of a city councilor on charges of cooperating with the Viet Cong. The official Vietnam Press said Nguyen Hien, chairman of the local tailors union, helped a Viet Cong woman cadre smuggle weapons into Da Nang prior to enemy attacks on the city in late August.

Mud left by 10 inches of rain from Typhoon Bess halted a string of skirmishes across the country. As a result of this, a government spokesman reported a sharp drop in enemy casualties Tuesday.

He said only 1,664 enemy troops were killed last week compared to 5,329 and 4,476 in the two previous weeks.

According to the latest figures, 550 enemy were slain by South Vietnamese soldiers and 714 by American and other allied troops. Government casualties were also lower—325 killed, 1,081 wounded and 60 missing. American casualties will not be released until Thursday.

In addition, the South Vietnamese government reported that 115 civilians were killed and 471 were wounded during August by "indiscriminate" enemy shelling of 31 provincial capitals.

The Foreign Ministry filed a protest with the International Control Commission claiming there were 79 such attacks last month in which the enemy used "mortars, rockets and recoilless rifles to hit civilian areas and kill innocent people."

The ministry appealed to the ICC to "force the Hanoi regime to stop all these savage acts so peace can be restored soon." In the only significant shelling Tuesday, enemy gunners fired 17 122mm rockets into Kontum City, killing an American adviser and two Vietnamese civilians.

A U.S. spokesman noted a general decrease in fighting since the enemy's lightning attacks on Tay Ninh City, the Duc Lap Special Forces camp and Da Nang in late August. However, he said there is no indication the enemy command is making any major withdrawal similar to that of mid-June when enemy troops pulled back to regroup.

Negro state official deplures school system

HARRISBURG (AP) — A Harrisburg Negro attorney unleashed a stinging condemnation Tuesday of the American "system" which, he charged, fostered the attitude that blacks were inferior to whites.

"The system of the United States has brought us a system which has completely ignored the contributions of the colored race in this country," James H. Rowland, a member of the State Board of Education and a city school director, told a special Senate subcommittee.

"There are many Negroes who contributed to the greatness of this country," Rowland continued. "But when history was written, it was either forgotten he was a Negro or that he performed a glorious act at all."

The committee convened a public hearing to investigate the teaching of ethnic history, particularly Negro history, in Pennsylvania's public schools.

Earlier he heard Deputy Superintendent of Public Instruction Neal V. Musmanno state that the public schools have until recently failed to provide minority groups with full educational opportunities.

"We must face the realization that for many minorities the schools have not successfully provided the educational experiences which contribute to overcoming the effects of discrimination," Musmanno testified.

Rowland declared in his appearances that the state's basic institutions — "our churches and our schools" — must recognize that "the system has spread an attitude to the Negro that he is somehow inferior to his white brother and to the white man, that he is somehow superior to his black brother."

Calling such an attitude ancient poppycock, Rowland urged:

"Let's get about the business of writing textbooks which fairly present the picture."

Wallace dumps 'Happy'

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — George Wallace, still looking for a running mate, steps up the pace of his presidential campaign Tuesday with the start of a nine-day barnstorming trip through 14 states.

An atmosphere of mystery still surrounded the withdrawal—or dismissal—of former Kentucky Gov. A. B. "Happy" Chandler as a potential vice presidential candidate on the Wallace third-party ticket.

Until Monday, it seemed all but certain that the former Alabama governor had decided on Chandler for the No. 2 place on the ballot, and a news conference was scheduled for Tuesday in Washington to make the formal announcement.

The news conference was canceled abruptly late Monday, and Chandler, at his home in Versailles, Ky., hinted at some disagreement over civil rights. He told newsmen, "I wouldn't change my record if I could."

The onetime baseball commissioner declined to elaborate, but his wife, Mildred, spoke of "certain things in his progressive past that he's proud of."

In his second term as governor, Chandler mobilized National Guard troops to protect Negro children trying to attend previously all-white schools. He also opened state parks to Negroes and appointed the first Negro to the State Board of Education.

A source close to Wallace said Tuesday that the third-party candidate himself decided against Chandler as a running mate and that the decision was not based on any dispute over racial policies.

Scranton man found drowned

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — A 49-year-old man drowned in the Lackawanna River Tuesday.

Police said two workmen pulled the body of Frank Dyka, of Scranton, from the river only a few minutes after they had seen him walking along the bank.

Police said he apparently fell in accidentally.

Rowland declared in his appearances that the state's basic institutions — "our churches and our schools" — must recognize that "the system has spread an attitude to the Negro that he is somehow inferior to his white brother and to the white man, that he is somehow superior to his black brother."

Case reviewed after 16 years

Joe's coattails bring freedom

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "We're riding on Joe's coattails," said two of three men released from prison after 16 years by a court ruling the victim of an alleged holdup-murder actually died of heart disease.

Joseph Antoniewicz, 34; William Hollowell, 35, and Edward Parks, 37, had been under life sentences in the death of Harry Thompson, 54, during a 1952 Philadelphia holdup.

Antoniewicz, who likes to be called Joe, appealed for a new trial after medical evidence indicated Thompson had died of heart disease rather than a beating in the $7 robbery. The others benefited equally from his fight.

A new trial, ordered by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court last February, was held Monday before Judge Herbert S. Levin.

The old murder charge was dismissed at the request of the district attorney's office. Then, the three men pleaded guilty to robbery and conspiracy in the holdup. Judge Levin sentenced them to eight to 16 years in prison and two years probation each. But, since they already had served the maximum sentence, plus three months and nine days, the judge ordered their immediate release on probation.

"I have promises of a few jobs," Antoniewicz said Tuesday. "But I don't know what's going to happen."

Parks said an uncle had lined up a job for him, but he had worked as an X-ray technician in prison and that he'd like to get more training in that field. Hollowell said he had "no idea what I'm going to do, but the main thing is to get with my family. I'd like to spend some time with them. They've been terrific through all this."

Bernard L. Segal, a Philadelphia lawyer who started work on the case in 1963, said records on it take up a yard and a half in his filing cabinets.

"It's going to seem strange not working on it," Segal said.

Candidate blasts reserve callup

WASHINGTON (AP) — The callup of nearly 15,000 Navy and Air Force reservists after North Korea's seizure of the Pueblo is an "outrageous sham," Rep. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., said Tuesday.

Schweiker made the comment in a letter to Secretary of Defense Clark Clifford. Schweiker said most reservists were being used only for routine duties.

It was Schweiker's strongest statement to date on the callup that followed the seizure of the Navy's intelligence ship off the North Korean coast last January.

He said the incident was used "as an excuse to gain extra manpower, not to meet the Pueblo crisis but instead to increase military manpower levels for routine duty."

"The evidence now suggests strongly that these men may never have been needed in the first place to meet the Pueblo crisis and certainly they have not been effectively utilized for this purpose since their callup."

"It will be a difficult and highly embarrassing mistake for the government to admit. But human decency suggests that this wrong should be promptly rectified and that these men be deactivated."

Pike leads way

Road work totals $72 million

HARRISBURG — State highway construction and improvement in the five-county northern tier area during the next six years will soar to a record breaking high in excess of $72,712,500, it was disclosed in a report released Tuesday by Sen. T. Newell Wood of the 20th Senatorial District at his Harrisburg offices.

This figure covers 113 projects on the drawing boards for Susquehanna, Pike, Monroe, Wyoming and Wayne counties. "These programs," the senator remarked, "are making giant strides keeping pace with modern travel and transportation demands."

"Make no mistake about it," Wood emphasized, "highways are the lifeline of our future."

Greatest expenditures will be in Pike and Monroe Counties, the legislator noted. He said $32,126,900 is on tap for Pike with 15 jobs, and $21,055,600 scheduled for Monroe with 18 projects.

Breakdown

	Value	Projects
Susquehanna	$4,512,900	35
Pike	$32,126,900	15
Monroe	$21,055,600	18
Wyoming	$5,498,400	24
Wayne	$9,818,700	21
Totals	$72,712,500	113

In discussing the future highways for the area, Wood observed the accelerated highway building program in Pennsylvania has brought many improvements. Both, in construction and in improved maintenance there has been considerable progress, the senator added.

Last year, Wood's report showed, the state highway department put under construction $10,920,204 of highway work in the five counties. The largest undertakings were in Wayne County where expenditures totaled $7,810,249.

In Wyoming County the work hit $2,134,910. Work totals in neighboring counties for that same period were: Susquehanna, $906,047; Pike, $37,424; Monroe $31,574.

"Before this six-year program terminates, the state will have spent over $100 million in providing the northern tier counties with the most modern highways in the state," Wood pointed out.

"It is evident," he continued, "our counties have won deserving recognition as a major part of the New Pennsylvania promoted throughout the country."

"The rapid and consistent growth of our communities resulting from the national image we are developing as an industrial, business, residential, educational, and all year resort and recreational center, make it no longer a dream to foresee an annual influx approaching a quarter million people in the not too distant future," Wood asserted.

Indicating the wide expanse of the five-county setup, Sen. Wood stated there were 2,948 miles of highways maintained by the Commonwealth. Susquehanna leads in mileage with 987 followed by Pike, 321, Monroe, 328, Wyoming 371, Wayne 741.

The legislator's report also listed 1,324 bridges in the five counties as follows: Susquehanna 485, Pike, 182, Monroe 364, Wyoming 205, Wayne 307.

Sharing in the liquid fuel payments, the five counties received a total of $186,486, as follows: Susquehanna $35,124; Pike $13,035; Monroe, $68,877; Wayne $36,780; Wyoming, $32,670.

Highest total ever

40 register in Greentown

GREENTOWN — A highly successful registration of voters was held in a new site this year in Greentown, with the approval of the Philadelphia Regional Department of the Post Office.

Registering in the post office has never been done before in this area, where registration in the past has been held in the Hemlock Grove United Methodist Church.

But this year, the Greentown Post Office on Route 507 was the site, on a strictly non-partisan basis. It was quite simply a concerted effort to "get out the vote" regardless of party affiliation.

Arranged through the Pike County Commissioners, the registration was held under the direction of Mrs. Elaine Mosher and Norman Lehde.

A record total of 40 new voters was recorded during the three-hour span. Of these, 32 were Republicans; five were Democrats; and three were Independents. Voting officials noted that the highest total of registering voters in any previous year was eleven, and pointed out that "hard work was the answer" to creating interest among the voters.

Methodist men don aprons during dinner

NEWFOUNDLAND — All of the preparation, the cooking, serving and cleaning up will be done by the men, according to plans for the Methodist Men's Roast Beef Supper which will be served to the public as a fund-raising project on September 14 at 4:30 p.m.

The supper will be held at the South Sterling Woman's Society of Christian Service Hall, a site which has seen probably a thousand such suppers in the past hundred years, but which has rarely seen one when the women were not in the aprons, behind the stove, and in front of the sink.

The menu, really foot-proof as far as preparation is concerned, includes roast beef and gravy, mashed potatoes, fresh corn, fresh tomatoes, cole slaw and jello with whipped cream. The men had considered trying their skill at pies, but decided that jello would probably turn out better.

Paul Williams is president of the organization which includes all men of the LaAnna, South Sterling, and Hemlock Grove United Methodist Churches.

The group held a highly-successful outdoor chicken barbecue at the fairgrounds this Summer, and now, flushed with their success, have decided to try their hand at roast beef on Saturday night.

Judge denies S-burg man's jail appeal

EASTON — In denying a post-conviction appeal, a Northampton County judge has ruled that a 20-year-old Stroudsburg man was motivated by the lure of a more lenient sentence.

Judge Alfred T. Williams Jr. denied the appeal filed by Frank Bachman of 64 Broad St., Stroudsburg, who is serving a maximum sentence for auto theft.

Bachman, in appealing from his Dec. 19, 1966, sentence, claimed that his court-appointed counsel was ineffective and his guilty plea was motivated by "allegedly constitutionally defective confession."

He was charged with stealing an automobile in Easton, May 20, 1966.

Judge Williams found that new plea was based on the hope of a shorter sentence so he could enter service.

It was ruled that Bachman's plea was voluntarily given and not motivated by a confession given to Easton police four days after he was arrested in Stroudsburg with the car.

Williams also held that Bachman's lawyer rendered an effective service.

Area man in accident

DELAWARE WATER GAP — Mrs. Debbie Smith of Delaware Water Gap has learned that her husband, Ronald E. Smith, was injured recently in an auto accident in Jacksonville, Fla. He is unable to write, but would like to hear from friends.

Smith's address is Ua 172—Cecil Field—Jacksonville, Fla. He is the son of Mrs. Donald B. Transue, East Stroudsburg R.D. 2.

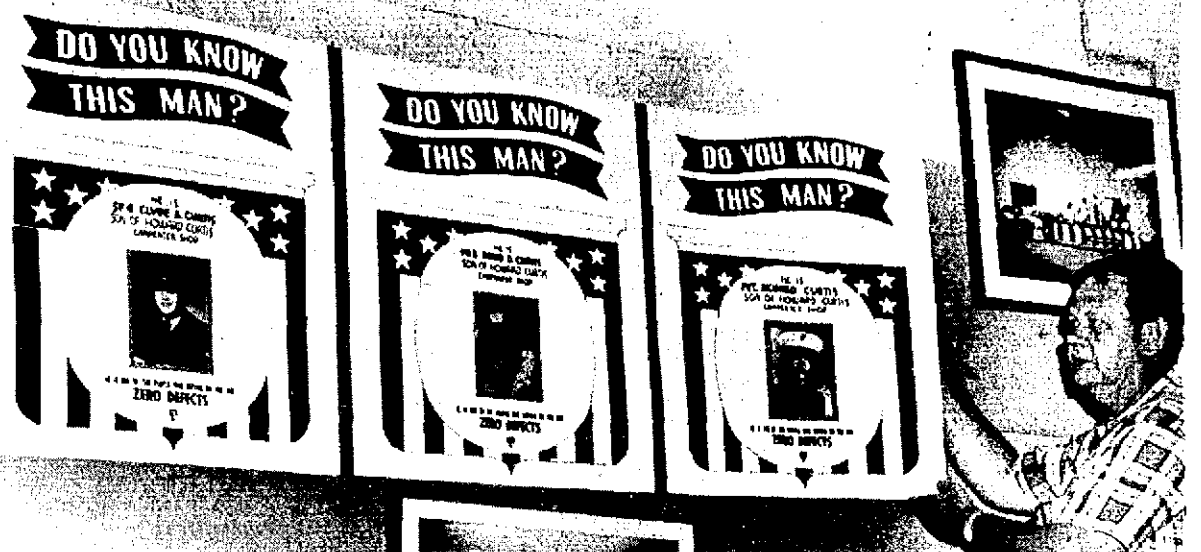

Bangor man loses dispute over bill

EASTON — A Northampton County Board of Arbitration has awarded a $1,000 judgement against a Bangor printer for printing equipment and materials delivered in 1965 and 1966.

Another arbitration panel awarded $163 in accident damages to a Nizareth man. The board ruled against Phyllis Rubin, Stroudsburg R.D. 5, the driver of one of the vehicles involved.

The award for printing materials went against Lloyd E. Williams, trading as Lloyd Williams Associates, Printer, at 531 S. First St., Bangor.

Mrs. Rubin was involved in a collision with a bus driven by Norman E. Smith at the intersection of Routes 916 and 512 in Moore Twp.

Three serving in armed services

Sons give TAD man mission

TOBYHANNA — Howard Curtis of Henryville has a unique distinction among his some 1,000 co-workers at Tobyhanna Army Depot. He has three sons serving with the armed forces.

Sp. 4 Clyde, 23, is stationed at Fort Riley, Kan., with the Army; Ph 3 David, 21 is based in California with the Navy; and Pvt. Richard, 20, is at camp LeJeune, N.C., with the Marines.

Clyde and David have served three years of four-year enlistments. Clyde joined first and David followed three weeks later. Richard recently completed his basic training and is awaiting further orders.

The proud father can't explain why his sons chose to become members of separate branches of the service. "The choice was strictly theirs," he said.

Only a girl, Shirley Ann, nine, remains at home. "It got real lonely around our house when the boys left," the father remarked, "but it could live up again in a year or so."

For now, none of the boys plan to make the service a career. Clyde and David have indicated a desire to attend college upon discharge. Richard still hasn't decided on his future.

With the boys away, Mrs. Curtis has had to adjust her kitchen habits. "My wife was used to putting on a big spread," Curtis said, "but with only three of us at home, she's had to cut down quite a bit."

Father Galligan respected by all

Monroe County has lost one of the most sincere workers in behalf of the ecumenical movement in the departure of Father E. Robert Galligan from the Pocono Catholic Missions.

In 16 years this youthful priest has accomplished what every person, in every walk of life, would like to accomplish in a lifetime.

Father Galligan started the Pocono Mountains version of the ecumenical movement long before it was adopted in Rome and given support by every denomination throughout the world.

We believe the greatest tribute that can be paid to any person is to be missed by everyone. Such is the tremendous honor being directed toward the Scranton native. He will be missed by Catholic and non-Catholics alike.

Father Galligan's friends include major league baseball players, people of the theater and giants in industry. They also include the poor people, folks in need and individuals by the score who he has befriended since coming into this area.

An individual with driving force, complete understanding, tremendous speaking talent, outstanding athletic ability and stamina enough for 10 people, Father Galligan has won the respect of everyone with whom he has come in contact.

A devoted disciple of his own church, Father Galligan always respected the right of everyone to worship as they say fit. He saw education as a major part of religion and guided Pocono Central Catholic School to his current prominent position.

It was uncanny the manner in which he could solve problems, be they his own or those of a visitor. He understood and worked with Protestant ministers and members of their churches just as easily as he did the priests and parishioners of his own church.

Father Galligan officially ended his current stay in Monroe County on Tuesday and departed with best wishes for a successful and happy future ringing in his ears. The wishes came from all churches in this area, not only his own.

Some people owe their very life and family happiness to this man of keen understanding and knowledge.

IBW showing growth

International Boiler Works is the latest area industry to show a marked growth pattern and at the same time display that there is strength in consolidation.

IBW last Saturday released plans for its new research and testing center to be constructed on the company's property in East Stroudsburg. It is hoped by company officials that the new facility will be in use by March.

Within the past year IBW has become a subsidiary of Ovitron Corp., as did the Wade Co., one of the pioneers in the fight against air pollution. There are now Wade Co. employees working at IBW, who will later work in the new research and development facility, as part of the expanded operation and employment of the firm, now in its 82nd year of operation.

Morgan Hebard Jr., president of IBW, expects the new testing facility to lead to increased employment accompanied by a substantial expansion of production manufacturing space.

The new facility will consist of 12,500 square feet, adequate space to accommodate approximately 115 people engaging in engineering, drafting, product development and supporting administrative activities.

The testing facility is the latest in a rapid line of developments that are increasing the scope in all departments for IBW. One of the most recent developments was a gigantic incinerator contract for Chicago. It is the biggest contract ever awarded IBW.

IBW is just another example of Monroe County's rapid growth.

The principal of a local junior high school heard shouting and laughter as he passed one room. He opened the door in time to see one long-haired youth shouting and dancing down the aisle. He seized the lad, dragged him into the corridor and told him to stand there until excused.

Then the principal returned to the classroom and restored order. After giving a long lecture on discipline, he asked if there were any questions.

"Yes," one student said. "When are you going to let our teacher come back in the room?"

Reds position troops

WASHINGTON — Russia appears to be positioning its troops in Czechoslovakia for further military moves in Central Europe or for a long stay.

United States Intelligence authorities report that the Kremlin has moved eight of its crack divisions into positions near the West German border while tightening control over Czechoslovakia's population.

The hundreds of tanks that filled Prague late in August have been moved to Roja, where Lieut. General Ivan Veliokov has set up his headquarters as Warsaw Pact Commander for central Europe.

The Roja area has become the concentration place for four Soviet Armored divisions and more than 100,000 airborne and motorized infantry troops.

Another Concentration

Another major concentration of Soviet armor and troops is in the forests around Rozvadov on the West German border facing the German city of Waidhaus.

Strategically, Rozvadov lies on Highway Number Three leading from Pilsen to Nuremberg, and is one of the main border crossing points into West Germany.

While the public spotlight has been focused on Soviet troops in Prague, the elite Russian divisions were moved in strength from Russia directly to the West German border immediately after entering Czechoslovakia.

These Soviet troops, in most instances, were guided to their new border positions by units of the regular Czechoslovakia Army, which never fired a shot against the Russian "invaders".

United States Intelligence agents who succeeded in visiting the border area have reported to Washington that the Soviet forces, equipped with armored units, artillery and helicopters, were digging in for a long stay.

The Soviet forces, using Rozvadov as the headquarters, have fanned out along the West German frontier, spreading south in the region adjacent to Bavaria and north toward As, the crossing point contiguous to the East German line.

This strategic deployment of Soviet ground forces along the West German border also was accompanied by a tremendous Soviet Airforce build-up inside Czechoslovakia.

Latest U.S. Intelligence count shows that more than 500 Russian Jet interceptors and fighter-bombers have been moved from bases inside the Soviet Union to Czech airfields. Dozens of temporary airbases are now being built to handle additional aircraft.

None of these military moves on the West German border, U.S. Intelligence officials say, were needed to establish control in Czechoslovakia. The massive military build-up, they warn, points instead to new Soviet pressure on West Berlin and possibly West Germany.

Their information is that the Russians expect a wave of disorder to break out in West Berlin, West Germany, and France this fall and that the Kremlin wants to be in a position to take advantage of it.

Should the disorders paralyze either of these governments, these Intelligence experts say, the Russians are likely to attempt to put troops back in West Berlin or blockade the beleaguered city. Already, Communist student leaders in the former German Capital have received instructions to ferment riots in October.

Humor in politics

WASHINGTON — Recently we had a column about the increasing use of humor in political campaigns. We quoted some of the fast quips gotten off by President Johnson, Richard Nixon and Eugene McCarthy, men ordinarily not known for their Bob Hope-like qualities.

Now we've learned where some of these jokes are coming from, or, at least, where they may be coming from. (The outfit which produces them is rather secretive about its clients.) It's called Current Comedy and is located at 300 New Jersey Ave., SE, in Washington, about three blocks from the Capitol.

"This is a 10-year-old, private humor service for politicians, public speakers, disc jockeys and people like that," said Jean Connolly, a Current Comedy editor. "We even have a few ministers who buy it. I guess they like to get their congregations in a receptive mood before hitting them with a sermon."

"Most of our writers are located in New York and Hollywood. A couple of them write for prime-time television shows and moonlight for us. Anyway, we collect all the gags and pick the best. Every two weeks a subscriber receives, in a plain brown wrapper, 75 new one-liners."

Choice Items

I asked for and received permission to reprint some from the last few issues:

"I hear President Johnson told Hubert Humphrey, 'Well, Hubert, may the best man win.' And Hubert said, 'Hey, Lyndon, I thought you were on my side!'"

"The hippies have love-ins and the poverty fighters have lie-ins. But the criminals have their own demonstrations — break-ins!"

"College boys don't write home for money any more — just for guns and ammunition. I worked my way through college selling magazines and so is my son. He's selling magazines for the Browning Automatic Rifle."

"Our athletes in Mexico for the Olympics will be running and jumping for 10 days. Of course, a lot of that will be from drinking the water."

"Someone asked me if I'd ever seen any square dancing at the White House and I said, 'Well, I've watched Lyndon do the fox trot.'"

"Have you heard about Marriage Anonymous for divorced men? Whoever you feel like getting married again they send over a woman in a housecoat and hair curlers."

"I don't want to discourage you, but there's talk in Paris of putting up a permanent building for the peace talks."

"I know of at least one way to reduce crime in the streets...we should widen the sidewalks."

1968 — when kids get into more trouble staying in school than they do hanging around poolrooms.

Washington is getting 1,000 more policemen, which may be enough to handle the crime in my block.

Teddy Kennedy will wait until 1972 to make his presidential bid. But, at 40, won't he be too old?

The next thing you know, the Democrats will blame their Chicago disaster on Mrs. O'Leary's cow.

Saw a stolen mail truck yesterday. It had to be stolen, it was parked legally.

Maybe participants at the peace talks ought to join hands and try to contact the living.

Russia says it won't invade Romania. That's what Hitler said; Czechoslovakia was his last territorial demand in Europe.

The candidates say they're going to the people, and the people are going anywhere to avoid them.

Allen - Goldsmith Report

Senate to probe TV

John A. Goldsmith

WASHINGTON — Chicago Mayor Richard Daley can use a Senate hearing as his forum for airing complaints about television coverage of the violent disorders during the Democratic National Convention in his city.

A public review of the "fairness doctrine" administered by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) is now being set up by the Senate Communications Subcommittee. Under that doctrine the FCC requires that broadcasters give fair treatment to all sides of controversial questions.

Commission spokesmen and network representatives have been tentatively scheduled to testify at the hearings. However, Subcommittee Chairman John O. Pastore, D-R.I., will not refuse if Mayor Daley asks to present his charges of unfair coverage.

"This man has been widely criticized. I think he should have a chance to make his case," says Pastore.

Daley contends that the networks unfairly portrayed the actions of Chicago police in enforcing convention security measures and controlling young anti-war protestors who gathered in Chicago. The mayor bluntly rejects charges of police brutality arising from televised clashes between demonstrators and police.

Other aspects of television's convention programming will also figure in the hearings. For example, the subcommittee staff is reviewing allegations by television columnists that commentators of at least one network, CBS, actively promoted the unsuccessful efforts to draft Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., as Democratic presidential nominee.

Under Pastore's leadership the senate subcommittee has tried to function as a watchdog for television and radio without trespassing on constitutionally protected freedom of expression. The subcommittee rides herd on the FCC and, while the networks are not regulated by the commission, each of them is allowed to own five stations in major markets, which are subject to FCC regulation.

Other Violence

The subcommittee's hearings, as previously reported in this column, were originally aimed at another sort of televised violence — the murder and mayhem portrayed nightly in regular television programs. That subject will still get attention in the hearings.

The scope of the inquiry was broadened, however, in the wake of the convention controversy, and an unpublicized incident played a part in that decision. As a result of the incident, Pastore, himself, became a target for angry complaints about TV convention coverage.

The incident occurred at the tag end of the long Wednesday convention session which selected Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey

Jim Bishop

Sam wins, loses

The courts recessed around 4:30 p.m. and Sam jammed a sheaf of papers into his brief case and moped across the street to Dinny's Tavern. In the mahogany gloom, lawyers traded pleasantries and drank by themselves. The only time they bought a bell was for a newspaper reporter. The court stringers knew that Sam was a third-rate crime lawyer.

He had a face like a firkin of warm butter and his pale eyebrows hung halfway up his bald head in perpetual surprise. Sam was a good small claims man but there was laweency in his intellect. The big lawyers with the alligator shoes and the Salka ties used to throw him a bone at times.

The only one with marrow in it was the case of Freddie Grimes. I knew Freddie. He lived on impulse. Union Square was his hangout and he wasn't big, but he was fast with his hands. He mooched cigarettes and punched old men who said no to him. Freddie cried at sad movies too and, when he had a pocketful of peanuts, he split them with the pigeons.

He killed his girl. Freddie had lost one too many jobs and Tess said she was leaving. They shared a cold water flat off Mott Street near Chatham Square and Freddie Grimes, so far as I know, never had anything or anybody. Except Tess. She was all right if you like your dames with the big roundnesses where the small ones should be. She had no conversation except to whine or whiny.

Strange case

Grimes strangled her with his bare hands and she was on the linoleum when the cops arrived. Freddie was sorry. Very sorry. Truly sorry. He had killed the only thing that ever belonged to him. He cried hard. They took him away and I don't think Freddie could have retained a lawyer if he had money.

Some of the biggies talked to a county judge, and Sam was offered the case. It was like asking a mouse to defend a tiger, but Sam took it. Two half-hour talks convinced him that his man was as guilty as a husband smeared with the wrong shade of lipstick. Freddie begged to live. He wept. In his cell he fell to his knees. He prayed. There was a lot of cur in his neurological system when he was grappled. Everybody knew he had to die.

Sam fought the case as though he had a chance. We gave it four paragraphs a day under the supermarket ads. The more Sam made his motions and took his exceptions, the more convinced he became that Freddie Grimes had no heart at all. When court recessed, Sam adjourned to Dinny's and worked his shot glass into a sizable circle on the wet bar. "This man," he said off the record, "has no heart at all. I'm convinced he'd do it again."

It was the biggest case Sam ever had, but as presidential nominee. As stragglers filed out of the hall, NBC newsmen Sander Vanocur began on-camera questioning of a young and disconsolate worker for Sen. Eugene McCarthy.

The young man told Vanocur that he had been assigned to the Rhode Island delegation of which Pastore was a member. Then, in reflecting on McCarthy's defeat, the young McCarthyite remarked that his convention experience had taught him something about "grafting." He later qualified the use of that word, but the damage had been done.

Pastore was peppered with inquiries from Rhode Island viewers and was asked by fellow delegates whether such a loaded comment should be carried by a network when it represented the somewhat emotional reaction of a young man who had no connection with the Rhode Island delegation and was not even recognized by delegates.

Under the circumstances it is a good guess that the conduct of such "live" interviews, and the discretion to be employed; will all figure in the subcommittee's hearings.

Unfinished Business

Congress, which is famous for spending freely while its members talk economy, has been in no hurry to extend the life of one agency which pours millions of dollars into the federal treasury every year.

The agency is the Renegotiation Board, which has power to review payments on certain government contracts and recover profits found to be excessive. The present board has saved the taxpayers nearly one billion dollars since 1951. A predecessor recovered about $11 billion from defense contractors in World War II.

A three-year extension for the powers of the board passed the house, but it is now bogged down in the legislative mill. The Senate Finance Committee has added irrelevant amendments with respect to the "dumping" of imports and international coffee prices.

The delay is nothing new. Extension bills have been delayed in the past by the behind-the-scenes efforts of big government suppliers who would like to eliminate the board's review process and avoid any loss of profits, however excessive.

The big contractors would be especially happy to see the Renegotiation Board die now, with government procurement programs inflated by the demands of the war in Vietnam.

A similar delay was encountered when the renegotiation act was extended several years ago, but former Rep. Carl Vinson, D-Ga., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, presented tough testimony advocating extension and spiced it with embarrassing statistics on the profits of big defense contractors.

The delay ended magically and that extension bill was rushed to the White House.

his client was craven. Guilt was proved by an assistant District Attorney and the jury was hung for two days. The judge dismissed them without judicial thanks and Sam became a slightly brighter legal light—about 10 watts.

Sam saw more and more of Freddie in the county can. The more the lawyer heard of the prisoner's innermost thoughts, the sicker he became. "The man hasn't got a ticker," he said. "He's got a bunch of arteries and an outboard motor." At the second trial, Freddie was found guilty and sentenced to die. He was dragged from the court screaming and begging for mercy.

Little fake

It was Sam's time to fake a little. He couldn't do it. At night he worked the trial transcript over and got help filing a brief. The higher court gave him a reversal and Sam got drunk. The big lawyers began to refer to Sam as the bulldog. At the third trial, Freddie Grimes was found guilty and remained guilty.

Everybody said that Sam had kept the bum alive two years beyond his time. The State was paying the lawyer off in unshelled pistachios, but he continued the fight. The legal beagle kept barking and wagging his tail, which is a contradiction in terms. His heart sank every time he went to the death house to talk to Freddie.

The prisoner groveled. He went on hunger strikes. He tried to cut his wrists on his bedsprings. He prayed to Tess in heaven to intercede for him. "Anything but death!" he used to moan in his sleep. "Anything but that."

Sam exhausted the courts. He went to the governor, an elderly man who sat, hardly listening, with his gubernatorial counsel. Then Sam packed his brief case and took his melting face home. A week later, he was in Dinny's.

"Drinks for everybody," he said. The bartender asked no questions.

That afternoon, the warden had approached Freddie and told him that the governor had commuted his sentence to life. Freddie held the bars, then sagged to the floor, dead. "I feel better," Sam murmured. "It proves he really had a heart."

Stories Behind Words

By William Penfield

LADY

The word "lady," which is used to denote a woman of recognized social standing, once meant "bread-maker." It comes from the Anglo-Saxon "hlæfdige," which was formed from "hlæf" (loaf) and "dige" (kneader).

"Hlæfdige" was shortened to "hlafdi" in Middle English and then to "lady" in modern English.

The woman of the house was the one who kneaded and baked the bread, therefore, "lady" acquired the meaning of housewife.

The word later was restricted in use to refer to the wife of the owner of an estate, then, by extension, to any woman of recognized social standing.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

There's no doubt about it, we have a lot more sparkle when there's somebody new to sparkle for. Don't misunderstand me. Old friends are grand, as easy to be with and as comfortable as old shoes.

And sometimes that's how we treat them, too: sloppily. After all, we know each other's ages, how we did in high school, and each other's opinions on politics, religion and raising children. So all the sharp points that might send off sparks are as smoothed down as a pebble.

But add a few newcomers to a crowd and its members all develop so many new facets they fairly send off sparks like maybe diamonds.

Of course, the quality of the newcomers has a lot to do with the intensity of the sparkle; something to do with reflected light, maybe. So when three new doctors and their wives are added to a group of familiars as Drs. Mary and Lew Hunsicker's the other night, everybody seemed practically incandescent.

The party was in honor of Dr. Joel Samuelson and his wife, Dr. Samuelson is an allergist and is very easy to spot in any crowd because he's so very tall. His wife is small and knowledgeable about world affairs and they're living at Spring Lake.

Almost as new to the community are Dr. Brian Gottlieb and his wife, Dr. Gottlieb is a psychiatrist and has a beard, and his wife, has reddish hair and freckles, and they're living in a log cabin now.

In common with most people, I'm apt to freeze in the presence of a psychiatrist, fearing that my id is showing or something, but because his father, a noted artist in Philadelphia, is my sister's art teacher and I've heard so much about him, my mother complex took over, and it was very comfortable.

Then there was Dr. Philip Martin, obstetrician, who has been here since June, but, to illustrate how involved this summer has been, it wasn't until the party that I realized that Mrs. Martin is our own little Joan Harl, for goodness sake.

And that brings me to another point, old friends. If you think this year's crop of college freshmen seem awfully young—wait until you see the new doctors.

Republican Women step up activities

STROUDSBURG — The Republican Women of Monroe County are getting into the political swing in September, starting with the antique car torch-light parade for Richard Nixon, sponsored by the Barrett Republican Club on Saturday, Sept. 14.

The parade will start at 6 p.m. in the parking lot of the Mountaineer Methodist Church and end in the rally at convention lodge, Buck Hill Inn. All members of local councils are invited.

Local Republican Women's Councils are also invited to the Political Activities Conference to be held at Briar Heights Lodge, Berwick, on Tuesday, Sept. 17. Speakers will be Congressman Schweiker, Judge Hannum and Frank J. Pasquerella. Reservations must be made by Sept. 12 with Mrs. Gladys Lewis, 254 Hughes St., Berwick, 18803.

The Monroe Council of Republican Women will meet Wednesday, Sept. 18 at the Penn-Stroud Hotel. They are also planning a rummage sale to be held Friday and Saturday, Sept. 20 and 21 at 316 Main St., Stroudsburg.

The new look in luxury coverups by Elinor Simmons for Malcolm Starr is a crystalline turquoise silk-and-worsted pyramid with a cuffed neckline and turquoise jewels and beads at slashed neckline and sleeves.

Dressed-up look back for evening

STROUDSBURG — Many women have started shopping for evening gowns, and this year, ten to one, they will be long.

It will be a winter of political gowns and an inaugural but politics in Monroe County generally aren't that formal, with the possible exception of the Governor's Dinner.

However, the headstart on the formal season which climaxes locally with the holiday open houses this year is due to the earlier date for the Charity Ball.

Designer Elinor Simmons of Malcolm Starr has already dismissed politics for a more basic reason: people simply feel like dressing up again.

"Call it escape. Call it reaction from the kooky, tacky fashion period we've just passed through. The results is that sales of long, rich and romantic evening clothes have never been as great as early in the season.

"What's more, women obviously want to show their figures and cinch in their waists again."

The formal outlines, Elinor Simmons sees as most important and long range are the glamorized shirtwaist shape, the seuctive draped or molded dress in a sheer and often glitter-etched fabric, the ultra-simple dress in a very rich fabric or all-over embroidery, and the starkly simple evening dress that calls for jewelry.

The key fashion fabrics of the year, she feels, are brocades in soft colors, chiffons woven with gold, satin with a gleaming surface and the dull Lyons-type velvet.

The whole color palette has sweetened and grown richer with creamy off-white tones replacing pure white. A surprising best seller for this season has been lime green.

Jerry Ifft married in garden setting

LOS ALTOS, CALIF. — Miss Mary Ann Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Davis of 1840 Country Club Drive, Los Altos, Calif., was married on Aug. 31 at 4:30 to Jerry Robert Ifft, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ifft, of 721 Brown St., Stroudsburg.

It was a garden wedding held at the home of the bride with Hon. Edward Seayen officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her sister, Mrs. Robert Barry of Port Dix, N.J., was her matron of honor.

Kenneth Wagner of Redding, Calif., served as best man.

The bride wore an empire-waisted gown of embroidered organza with long sleeves and a straight ankle-length skirt. The matron of honor wore a dress of deep blue chiffon. They both carried cascade bouquets of daisies and bachelor buttons.

The mothers of both the bride and bridegroom had corsages of white roses.

A reception for 75 guests was held following the ceremony.

Among the guests at the wedding were the parents of the bridegroom, from Stroudsburg; his brothers, John Ifft and family from Medford, Ore., and Dr. James Ifft and family from Redlands, Calif.; and his aunt, Mrs. Hazel Green of Hemet, Calif.

The bride attended Northwestern University and was graduated from San Francisco State College. Mr. Ifft graduated from The Pennsylvania State University and did graduate work at the University of Redlands.

They were both members of the faculty at Nova II High School in Redding, California, last year where Mr. Ifft was head of the English Dept.

They are the parents of three children: Mrs. Ewing R. Hill, Houston, Texas; William Curnow Jr., Stroudsburg; and Mrs. Alan S. Holliday of Lancaster. They have seven grandchildren.

Anniversary dinner for Curnows

EAST STROUDSBURG — Mr. and Mrs. William A. Curnow Sr. of 872 Creek Drive, East Stroudsburg, were honored on their 50th wedding anniversary with a dinner at Heddy's Restaurant. They were married on Sept. 4, 1918, by Rev. C. Klinefelter, of Wilkes-Barre.

Mr. Curnow is manager of the Stroudsburg Municipal Water Authority. They have resided in the Stroudsburgs for the past 24 years. They are members of the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church.

They are the parents of three children: Mrs. Ewing R. Hill, Houston, Texas; William Curnow Jr., Stroudsburg; and Mrs. Alan S. Holliday of Lancaster. They have seven grandchildren.

New season for Dames of Malta

STROUDSBURG — St. John's Sisterhood, Dames of Malta, will open their Fall meetings on Monday, Sept. 16, at 8 p.m. in Malta Temple, Stroudsburg.

The charter will be draped in memory of Lady Maud Walton, a 52-year member, who died on July 9.

At the business meeting, plans will be completed for the rummage sale to be held Sept. 26 and 27 at 314 Main St., Stroudsburg.

A birthday social will follow, honoring those having birthdays in July, August and September.

Opening lead—king of hearts. Thailand finished 19th and Lebanon an undistinguished 28th in the 33-nation 1968 World Bridge Olympiad, but together they produced one of the most sensational hands of the tournament when they met in the 20th round.
Thailand scored quite a few notable victories in the 32 matches they played, numbering among their victims such countries as Australia, Ireland, Austria, Iceland, Kenya, Israel and Denmark.
Lebanon scored an upset victory over Italy, and also took the measure of France, South Africa, Thailand (13 to 7), Venezuela, Ireland and Finland.
The fireworks on the accompanying deal started when the Lebanese South (Falss) opened the bidding as dealer with four hearts West (Somboni), applying the unusual notrump convention (rightly or not) to ask for a minor suit response, overcalled with four notrump.

North (Bedros) naturally had doubts that four notrump could be made by East-West, and he expressed these doubts vocally with a double. East (Tularak) decided to respond in his better minor, and bid five clubs. This was a highly doubtful tactic on East's part; with no real preference for either minor, he should have passed and allowed West to choose the trump suit.
After two passes, North again expressed his opinion that the opponents could not make what they bid by doubling.
Everybody passed and South led the king of hearts, followed by the eight of spades. North took the ace, cashed the A-K-Q-10 of clubs, exhausting the adverse trumps, and returned a heart, permitting South to run his remaining seven hearts. So East did not win a single trick and went down eleven — 2,100 points!
At the second table, the Thai South also elected to open the bidding with four hearts. After West had judiciously passed, North made a gambling raise to six which failed when West cashed the A-K of diamonds to put the slam down one. As a result, Thailand's net loss on the deal was a cool 2,200 points.

Girl's dorm at ESSC approved

HARRISBURG — General State Authority Tuesday awarded contracts totaling $1,778,512 for the construction of a new girl's dormitory at East Stroudsburg State College.

The new building will be located near Hawthorn Hall between Isabel and Smith Streets. It will be a six-story building and will house 300 students.

Date for starting construction is unknown at this time but completion date is Dec. 15, 1969.

Contracts went to: General Construction—Pace Construction Corp., Allentown, $1,056,000; heating and ventilation—Davidson, Inc., Lansdale, $296,600; plumbing—William P. Brogna & Co., Inc., Allentown, $268,947; electrical—Nikolaus Electric Construction, Inc., Columbia, $156,965.

Also forbidden is the altering of fenders on the bikes. Blair said the purpose of the fender is to keep mud and water off the driver, and once again, anyone who altered them did so just for looks.

Drivers will be required to either wear glasses, goggles, or have a safety shield on their bikes, Blair said. He noted that the only part of the new laws he strongly disagrees with is the requirement that drivers wear helmets.

"I think it's up to the individual whether he wear a helmet or not," he said. Blair said that the new laws have killed the motorcycle and motorscooter rental business in the state. "They are out already," but said he did not think they would effect his business in the long run.

Staff-shy county planners can't provide local assistance

BRODHEADSVILLE — Members of the Chestnut Hill Twp. Planning Commission complained Tuesday night that the county's planning commission is understaffed and cannot render assistance to local planning agencies.

During a meeting in the Chestnut Hill Elementary School, Dr. John Martucci, chairman, said he sought help from the county planning commission but was told that the staff is presently overburdened in assisting township planners.

The Chestnut Hill commission agreed to appeal to the county commissioners to provide additional staffing on the county commission.

The county commission had delayed naming a replacement for Leonard Ziolkowski, who resigned as the county's executive planning director several months ago.

In his discussion of subdivision control with Snyder, Martucci said "he (Snyder) thinks we seem too preoccupied with determination of a minimum lot size." According to the township planning members this "deserves considerable attention" in foreseeing future problems of sewage and water systems.

In the discussion that followed concerning pros and cons of lots of more or less than one acre, feeling was generally expressed by the members for one acre lots or larger for developments.

C. Allen Conklin, noted "This deserves more consideration. There are several ways of looking at this. We can get more revenue for the township if a 12 acre development has 24 homes and yet, there are conditions that will not warrant half-acre lots or less. Then again, the smaller lots work very well in other cases."

Martucci explained that "we would like to keep it as suburban as possible in the township. It's a beautiful township as it is right now and we should maintain some 'lebensraum'."

It was agreed to include the question of minimum lot size on a questionnaire which the township will circulate as part of a community attitude survey.

Martucci emphasized that "we definitely want and need planning" but with the lack of assistance he questioned "where do we go from here?"

Conklin said "I think we've got to try to help ourselves first. Why wait for someone else?" and agreed to contact other township planners personally and establish some type of communication with them.

In other business, planning members proposed to investigate as a possible future source of water supply for the township, the head waters of McMichael Creek near Effort and the possibility of condemnation proceedings to reserve this area for future community water supply.

There was some discussion as to certain areas of the county which are experiencing problems with sewage seepage into water supplies and that this move would prevent the area from losing this water to any other commercial development or municipal water authority.

Plans were also finalized for completion of the community survey format, which will be distributed in the future to measure attitude and interest of the citizens for specific areas of community development.

The planning commission has changed its regular meeting date from the second Tuesday to the last Tuesday of each month, starting in October in order to maintain a compatible liaison with the township supervisors who meet the first Monday of each month.

State police arrest Texan wanted in Houston murder

EAST STROUDSBURG — A 23-year-old Texas man staying at Penner Hotel in East Stroudsburg, was arrested Tuesday by Stroudsburg State Police on a fugitive from justice warrant charging him with murder.

Harry Humberger of 5512 Breen St., Houston, Tex., is in Monroe County Jail to await authorities from Houston to arrive and return him to the Lone Star State for court action.

Troopers Donald Kresge and Alfred Dronowski received information from a local informant that the man was living in the Penner Hotel and that he was driving a 1966 Ford with Texas registration plates and that the car, along with an ESSO credit card and a checkbook, were stolen in Texas.

Kresge contacted Texas Highway Patrol by teletype and Texas authorities answered saying the man was wanted in Houston for murder.

Trailer crashes, driver injured

MOUNT POCONO — A Jessup truck driver was injured late last night when his trailer crossed Rt. 611, just south of Mount Pocono, jumped the guard rails and went down a 160 foot bank.

Stephen Kato of 512 Church St., Jessup, was admitted to General Hospital of Monroe County but the hospital had no condition nor list of injuries.

Vacationing Police Chief James Carey of Mount Pocono, appeared at the scene to aid the Patrolman Robert Hartman.

Chief Carey said the driver appeared to have a broken leg and possible hip injury.

Kato is reported to have jumped from the tractor just before it went down the bank.

The tractor was not pulling a trailer.

One injured in accident on Rt. 209

STROUDSBURG — One man was injured Tuesday at 4:50 p.m. in a two-car accident on Business Rt. 209 in Stroud Township.

The injured driver, Fred W. Clark Jr., of Stroudsburg R.D. 1, was taken to General Hospital of Monroe County where he was treated and released.

The other driver was identified as James Flaherty of Stroudsburg R.D. 2.

Stroud Township Police said Clark was traveling east when he slowed down to allow a car in front of him to make a turn.

Flaherty was also traveling east, back of the Clark vehicle, and observing a car at Green Street. When he looked back on the highway he saw the Clark car had slowed down. He applied his brakes and slid on the wet highway and collided with the Clark car.

Total damage is estimated by police at $975.

Area archers place high

WIND GAP — Three local men and two women representing the Blue Ridge Bowmen Archery Club, Wind Gap, placed high in the Pennsylvania State Archery shoot held at Seven Springs on Sept. 7 and 8.

In the Class D-Bare Bow competition, James Brannan, Saylorsburg, placed first and Jake Rasley, Tannersville, finished in second place.

In the Class C-Bare Bow, Ron Lee, Easton, finished third. Bobby Ann Rasley, Tannersville, placed second in the Class C-Freestyle and Marky Bellis, Wind Gap, won first place in the Class C-Bare Bow competition for women.

All five archers have been shooting less than four months under the coaching of Clyde Bellis of Intown Archery.

2 injured in crash on curve

MARTINS CREEK — Two people were slightly injured in an accident Tuesday on Route 611, one mile north of Martins Creek at the intersection of the Belvidere-Martins Creek Highway.

Easton State Police report that Alexander S. Gale, Jr., 24, of Bangor R.D. 3, was rushing home because of a family emergency when he rounded a curve going north on 611 and collided with Judith A. Hess, 22, of Bangor R.D. 3.

B'nai B'rith to hear Negro

STROUDSBURG — Jesse Lynch, President of the Monroe County Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, will be the guest speaker at the September meeting of the Stroudsburg B'nai B'rith Lodge 1299, Sept. 18 at Temple Israel.

Lynch will speak on "Employment and Housing for Negroes in the Pocono Area."

State moves to quiet motorcycles

EAST STROUDSBURG — Time is running out for motorcycle and motor scooter operators in this state who have not yet taken steps to obey Act, No. 162 of the Pennsylvania Motor Vehicle Code dealing with the use, operation, and equipment of motorcycles.

The effective date is Friday. After that, a special motorcycle endorsement will be required for those who wish to operate the machines. For those currently doing so on their regular drivers license, they can use that until it expires—at which time they will have to take a motorcycle test.

Tests for motorcycleists renewing their drivers licenses in September were started by the State Police on Sept. 3 across the state.

Tom Blair, local owner of Blair Scooter Service, Grandview St., East Stroudsburg, commented upon the safety regulations which will be required on the cycles themselves.

He explained that the regulations include allowing no change in a stock muffler and no handlebars above 12 inches. He said they will not affect the driver who has made no changes upon the bike he bought from a dealer.

The muffler requirement, he said, was put in to control excess noise. "A two-wheeled machine doesn't have to be noisy to have power and speed," Blair said. "The noise is just psychological."

He said the handlebar rule was for the drivers' own safety. When the bars are higher than the 12 inches, the operator has too much leverage and not enough stability, Blair said. He noted that the main reason for having high handlebars was "just to be different."

DWGNRA not only park feeling 'people pressure,' austerity

By BERT WALTER

Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — "People pressure" and the government's austerity program are stifling national parks and recreation areas throughout the county, Frank Dressler, executive director of the Tucks Island Regional Advisory Council, said Thursday.

Dressler made the observation after completing a 10,000 mile western tour of 11 national parks, four national recreation areas and five national monuments.

The Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area, Dressler indicated, may suffer from the same "people pressure" before it is even completed if an integrated recreation system is not implemented.

According to current estimates, the DWGNRA will be able to handle a maximum 140,000 visitors at any given time, Dressler fears, however, that "more people will want to visit the DWGNRA than can be accommodated."

Specifically, he suggested that state parks, forests, fish and game lands as well as private facilities be integrated with the Wrong-way driver hit

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg Borough Police Tuesday at 11:55 a.m. investigated a two-car crash on McConnell Street, near Kane Street. They reported no injuries and estimated total damage at $600.

Driver were Fred J. Strunk of Stroudsburg R.D. 1, and Clarence V. Allan of Owego, N.Y.

Police said Strunk was traveling west on McConnell Street and Allan, traveling the wrong way on a one way street, was going east.

DWGNRA to provide expanded recreational facilities and alleviate overcrowding. "The current 'people pressure' problem is the result of the interaction of a series of forces," Dressler said. The forces, Dressler explained, are "more people with more time and money combined with an urge to leave the city and a willingness to travel a fair distance for a recreational experience."

Dressler said that these forces are likely to intensify rather than abate in the next two or three decades.

National Park Service officials in a majority of parks, Dressler said, stated that the masses of people literally are "killing our parks with love."

Supplementing the "people pressure" is what Dressler termed "severe budgetary restrictions." He said the government's austerity program "was fairly clearly evident at Yellowstone, Yosemite and Lake Mead where far too few rangers were available for the number of visitors."

Crimes within national parks, Dressler said, are generally littering, minor auto accidents or collection of rock or plant specimens where forbidden.

"However, at Yosemite and other facilities fairly closely located to major urban areas, the problems of urban areas are beginning to spill into the parks," Dressler said.

Yosemite, Dressler explained, this past summer experienced problems with both hippies and motorcycle gangs.

Dressler said that camping facilities in the major parks were almost filled by noon each day. He suggested that national forests be used at major parks to relieve some of the camping pressures.

Dressler also observed that concessionaires within the parks must be rigidly controlled "or they will soon attempt to control the park."

If National parks and recreation areas are to serve its basic purposes and be of value to the region, Dressler concluded, "it is essential that the National Park Service have the cooperation of local and state authorities and all interested civic groups."

Truck fire in Stroudsburg

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg firemen were called out Tuesday at 10:50 a.m. for a truck fire in back of the IGA store in Stroudsburg.

Fire chief William Schneider said the minor fire was caused when the truck backfired through the carburetor.

Won't be towed for 30 days

Abandoned car could be hazard

DELAWARE WATER GAP — A car with New Jersey license plates, lying not quite off the side of the Delaware Water Gap exit ramp on Interstate Route 80 westbound, could prove to be a potential traffic hazard to westbound motorists using the Gap exit, especially at night in inclement weather.

The car broke down on the New Jersey side of the Delaware River Toll Bridge last Wednesday, according to toll bridge Sgt. Robert Kaiser.

As the pictures show, the left rear fender of the car juts out over the white border line of the highway leading to the exit ramp. The large rock fell on the car.

In Pennsylvania, cars are legally allowed to remain in the medial (center) strip of a state highway for not more than 48 hours, and on the side of the highway for 30 days, according to Pennsylvania State Police, Troop 'N', Hazleton Barracks.

New Jersey doesn't have a law that strictly applies to cars left on the side of a state highway, but according to Washington State Police Barracks, cars left or abandoned on the side of a state highway are towed away within 24 to 48 hours, and on the medial strip of a state highway within hours of the discovery of the car.

Sometime within the last week, the large rock, no doubt precipitated by recent rains, fell down the incline and struck the rear left side of the car left at the start of the Gap exit.

Another potential traffic hazard lies out on Route 209 westbound between the Beaver Valley and Snyder'sville exits. The rear left tire was sticking out on the side of the highway late Tuesday night, according to an area motorist.

CAB grants airlines mail route

WASHINGTON — Pocono Airlines has been granted a special order to carry mail between Hazleton and Newark, New Jersey.

In announcing the new mail service, a spokesman for the civil aeronautics board (CAB) explained that the board normally does not authorize air taxi carriers such as Pocono to carry mail. However, exceptions are made where the Post Office Department or the airline show that mail service would be beneficial.

Pro football

'The Toe' retires; to become coach

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The man who scored more points than any person in the history of professional football ended an era Tuesday. Lou "The Toe" Groza retired.

Groza, the last of the original Cleveland Browns, said at a luncheon he was stepping down to become a kicking coach, mainly for Don Cockroft, the 23-year-old who finally deposed Groza.

For the Browns, coach Blanton Collier, and particularly for Groza, it was a sad day. Groza retired involuntarily after being informed Monday he was going to be cut.

"I still think I'm good enough to kick in pro ball. But if I go somewhere else, what can I accomplish?" Groza said.

"I might be able to go to another team and prove to myself I can still do the job, but I would be doing a disservice to my family, myself, my business and my community."

Groza is vice-president of an insurance company, owns two dry cleaning firms and is on the part-time payroll of General Tire & Rubber Co.'s public relations department.

"I think I can help the Browns develop the kicking phase in the future. Athletics have been good to me and if I can help the young players," Groza said.

"I'll get great enjoyment out of it." "I said a long time ago I didn't want to be the one to say to Lou that the end had come," said Collier. "Strangely enough he still can kick the football. In fact, he probably is kicking as well now as when I came back to the Browns (in 1961)."

"I came into pro football with Groza in 1946 and it's a little sad when the moment comes that such a fine person and great football player retires," Collier said.

"I'm proud to be associated with him, to work with him and to have learned from him."

When the Browns were founded in the All-America Conference Groza was their place kicker. He played every year since except 1960 when he "retired" because of a bad back.

He holds 10 NFL records and 24 team records. His career total in points is 1,693. He is the only man in the NFL to score more than 1,000 points (1,349), including 234 field goals and 641 extra points. His record of scoring in 107 consecutive games also is more than any one else's.

His longest field goal was 53 yards against Brooklyn in 1948. His longest NFL field goal was 52 yards against New York in 1952.

For the past few years Groza had been rumored to be at the end of the trail. His widening waist line slowed him down considerably. But each year the Browns found no one better.

The young man who finally deposed Groza is a rookie from Alamogordo, Colo., who played at Adams State. "Cockroft is a capable kicker and with a few things I can give him he can have a fine career," said Groza.

"I want to do as good a job teaching these young guys as I think I did as a kicker."

3 vets dropped

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Giants trimmed three veterans from their roster Tuesday and announced that place-kicker Pete Gogolak had been granted a 30-day leave from his Army duties in Germany and would be on hand for Sunday's National Football League opener at Pittsburgh.

Cut from the squad were defensive back Wendell Harris, linebacker Barry Brown and place-kicker Les Murdock. That put the roster at the 40-player limit. Another player will be put on waivers when Gogolak returns, the Giants said.

Gogolak, who has been serving in the Army in Garmisch, Germany, will see action in four games. He does not count against the roster limit until Sunday.

Harris, a former Louisiana State star, was in his seventh season as a pro. Brown, who played at Mississippi, was in his third year. He was obtained by the Giants from Baltimore in a pre-season trade that sent defensive back Henry Carr to the Colts. Murdock, a Florida State graduate, was in his second year, coming to the Giants last year from the Green Bay Packers.

Falcons busy

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Atlanta Falcons, who earlier in the day waived four players — including veteran flanker Tommy McDonald and quarterback Ron VanderKelen — Tuesday picked up Minnesota Vikings' castoffs Bob Berry and Paul Flaherty.

The Falcons, who meet the Vikings at Bloomington Saturday night, obtained Berry, a fourth-year veteran from Oregon, as a backup quarterback to Randy Johnson. Ironically, they got VanderKelen from the Vikings for the very same purpose.

Flaherty is a split end-flanker from Northwestern who is a six-year NFL veteran.

In addition to McDonald and VanderKelen, the Falcons also cut 32-year-old defensive tackle Karl Rubke, an 11-year veteran like the 32-year-old McDonald who is the second-ranked pass receiver in the National Football League, and flanker Otis Cordell.

Elbow worse

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The chronically sore elbow that pains Johnny Unitas every time he throws a pass is sorer than ever.

Unitas Tuesday described himself as a doubtful starter when the Colts open their 1968 National Football League season against the San Francisco 49ers.

Coach Don Shula said nothing definite would be known until Wednesday, when Unitas will throw for the first time since the Saturday night 16-10 pre-season victory over Dallas in the Cotton Bowl.

"I'd have to say it hurts more than it ever has," said the 35-year-old quarterback whose stoicism about injuries is a Baltimore legend.

"If Unitas can't throw Wednesday," Shula said, "we'll try it later in the week."

Unitas suffers from a "tennis elbow." The tendon has become separated from the bone in the right elbow.

Williams hits 3 HRs; equals major record

CHICAGO (UPI) — Billy Williams clouted three home runs Tuesday to tie a major league record with five in two consecutive games and batted in six runs to power the Chicago Cubs to an 8-1 victory over the New York Mets.

Williams' first two homers, each coming after singles by Glenn Beckert came off starter and loser Dick Selma and the third, following a single by Don Kessinger, was against reliever Nolan Ryan. Williams' performance, his second game this season with six RBIs, gave him the league lead with 94.

His home run total climbed to 29, and teammate Ernie Banks hit his 31st homer, also against Ryan.

It was the first time in two years that the Cubs were able to defeat Selma, who had beaten them five straight games, four this year. The defeat ended Selma's record at 9-0.

Bill Hands gave up eight hits and pitched his fourth complete game against the Mets this season, running his record against them to 4-0. The victory boosted his season mark to 16-9.

Williams' record of five homers in two games tied a major league mark set previously by seven players, the last of them Joe Adcock with the Milwaukee Braves in 1954.

Have first scrimmage Saturday

Antolick not rushing Bears

By TED WISMER
Record Sports Editor

BROOKLYN — Roy Antolick is bringing his young Pleasant Valley High football team along slowly this season as he prepares for the seasonal opener on Sept. 21.

The Bears will have their first scrimmage with another team this weekend when it takes on a team from New Jersey.

Chatting while enjoying a free period Antolick said "we're about 10 times better than last year but we're still a long way to go. Size and depth are the two big problems we have but, we're especially hurting at offensive tackle."

Dean Kresge, who saw some action at tackle last year as a sophomore has a twisted knee and Wayne Arnold, a standout for Antolick in his first year in 1967, is an exchange student this year in Peru.

As the season progressed last year the Bears caused trouble with their wide open double wing attack and Antolick is planning to stay with it this season although he has lost

Steve Gordon to graduation. "We've made a slight adjustment this year and will run out of a tight double wing," Antolick remarked.

Antolick is hoping several good looking sophomores can make the jump from junior varsity to varsity ball this year.

In Pleasant Valley's wide-open style a good passer is a must and Antolick feels he has two dependable throwers in sophomore Calvin Smith and senior Gary Bruch.

The youthful mentor is also high on both set of running backs, which he feels has a lot more speed than last year. One set includes Weston Fenner, Dick Rodenbach and Rob Smiley, who sat out last year with an injury.

The second set is made up of Tony Castellana, Jim Cameron and Rick Meissell. The latter is a 5-11, 200 pound freshman who Antolick is very high on.

Offensively the only strong position is at guard where Dave Smith and Gary Frable, both regulars last year, appear set. The center is like Christian.

Sophomores are currently holding down both end posts and one tackle slot. The other tackle is Ross Blakeslee, a converted end, who also missed most of the 1967 season with an injury. Tom Berger is the other tackle while Bill Bowker and Jacob Warner are the terminals.

As Antolick put it "the boys are blocking and tackling a lot harder this year because they're hungry for wins."

Mexico making Olympic style dash in race against time

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — It all begins Friday—for Mexico a combination of Christmas and New Year's Eve, 21st birthday—and eve of execution.

For Mexico, the five Olympic rings could stand for blood, sweat, tears, money and tension. The last-minute race against the clock to finish the job, as much a Mexican custom as pinatas or tequila, is underway in all its frantic glory.

The days of the Olympic games are at hand—really beginning this Friday when President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz inaugurates the Olympic Village.

Carpenters, masons, electricians and other workers still are scrambling through the buildings, hurrying to finish work by the official deadline Thursday. Despite 12-hour workdays and round-the-clock shifts, it appears they won't make it.

Not quite—but organizing officials say only details and decoration remain to be finished.

Pedro Ramirez, the plump, smiling architect who heads the Mexican Olympic Organizing Committee, has a reputation for winding up his projects just under the line in a blaze of last-second activity. There were jokes that he once saw the last brick laid in a new museum just as the president appeared to cut the ribbon.

He appears to be running true to form.

The galloping approach of the Games, which officially open Oct. 12, sounds ever louder.

The special "Olympic airport" designed to receive athletes, a new reception center at the Mexico City Airport, went into operation Tuesday.

The yachting facilities in Acapulco opened Monday. Although the facilities don't have to be officially opened until Friday, there already are Olympic contestants on hand, and more will start pouring in next week, with the flood to reach 7,226 athletes from 119 nations by Oct. 12.

A group of 17 Polish cyclists became the first official Olympic arrivals last Thursday, followed in by 12 Spanish cyclists. A group of six Guatemalans, already on hand for a Mexico City track meet, just decided to stay over through the games.

A planeload of Argentine horses, for equestrian events, was due to arrive Tuesday.

Five East German officials arrived Monday, and joined Australians and Hungarians already here.

The vanguard of the huge (401 athletes) Russian team—130 strong—arrive Friday in two Tu-154 jets from Moscow. The first U.S. arrivals won't get here until Oct. 3, many of them after winding up their high-altitude acclimatization in the mountains of California, Colorado and New Mexico.

Mexico City has gone into high gear in its preparations for the Games. Workers are paving over the huge ditch that scarred the city for its half-built new subway, to ease traffic tieups during the games.

More than 2,000 private cars have been given temporary tax permits to cart around Olympic visitors. Olympic signs are everywhere.

The last-minute rush, like any such operation, hits some snags. Several rehearsals for the games—including the rehearsal of the opening ceremony—have had to be put off a few times while preparations catch up.

But with its hard-won new national prestige—and $153 million (U.S.)—on the line, Mexico is making a really Olympic-style dash this week in the race against time.

The National League entry enjoyed prosperity for five years when a million or more fans paid admissions from 1958 through 1962.

The team has played to only four crowds of 20,000 or more this season, the largest on opening day with 30,779. The first night game attracted 24,000 and the St. Louis Cardinals drew 23,500 for a two-night doubleheader and Bat Day brought out 21,491.

Swap dates

DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit Lions Tuesday swapped dates, with the Minnesota Vikings for their Oct. 6 football game in order to open up Tiger Stadium for the expected World Series.

The Lions had been scheduled to host the Vikings at the stadium Oct. 6 and both clubs were to play a return match Nov. 17 at Minnesota.

Expos sign first player

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Montreal Expos, Canada's new entry in the National Baseball League, signed southpaw Dave Hartman Tuesday as their first player.

Hartman, 21, from Iowa State College, was signed by Expo General Manager Jim Fanning and will report to spring training with Sarasota in the Class "A" Florida State League.

Hartman was a starting pitcher with Iowa State where he is in his senior year. As an amateur with Boone in the Iowa State semi-pro league this summer he pitched the team to the state championship and later competed in the National Baseball Tournament in Wichita, Kan.

He stands 6-foot-6 inches and weighs 180. He also played basketball at Iowa State.

Cannonball cut

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Steelers Tuesday pared their roster to 39 players, one under the National Football League limit by asking waivers on Jim (Cannonball) Butler and John Foruria.

A four-year veteran, Butler turned in a good performance last Saturday night against the Washington Redskins when he returned three kickoffs for a total of 145 yards, an average of nearly 50 yards a return. Butler was a rookie sensation in training camp in 1965 when he broke loose for long touchdowns in his first three games.

Foruria, a defensive back was a second-year pro who had played at Idaho.

Your Horoscope

By Francis Drake

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)

Planetary influences remain favorable. Continue to use procedures which have proven themselves in the past, but also investigate new avenues and means to advancement. Each supplements the other.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)

You, too, are governed by generous aspects, and can accomplish much in any chosen field as well as in your new interest you may espouse. Establish a firm footing first, then on to new goals.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)

While this day may have a few testy moments, stellar influences will brighten considerably within another 24 hours. Plan for bigger days ahead. Just one admonition: Don't make promises which may be impossible to keep.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)

Avoid an inclination to scatter energies. Keep on an even keel. Back intuition with FACTS, or you COULD make errors, misinterpret situations. Benefits indicated for the diligent.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)

You may decide to take up a new position, alter your course. Fine — if you don't bypass obligations in the doing! A challenging day, but one which the Leo can cope with handsly.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)

Day can be a prime period for intelligent action based on well organized thinking. Neither procrastinate nor act in haste, but DO time

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)

Happy hunting for the optimistic hunter — who also employs responsible methods. This could be a really BIG day for you!

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)

A day in which you can either follow or lead — but each in its place! Once started on proper procedure, you should sail along nicely.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius)

Be strong of purpose, straight in thinking (as the Sagittarius usually is), and unyielding in principles. Acknowledge possible errors, too. This ALWAYS wins respect, admiration — and cooperation!

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn)

Facing a dilemma? Set about solving it in well organized fashion — not too hurriedly, not with misgivings. Your innate self-confidence should keep you well on top of any situation.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius)

Planetary influences only fair in generosity, so you will have to provide your own momentum to carry on now. Neither too many problems nor much opposition indicated, however, so you should do all right on your own.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces)

A favorable Neptune aspect now gives you fresh basis for estimating potentials in launching long-range programs. Emphasize enthusiasm, optimism.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result in your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 9-11
